

medtech DIGITIZE

Digitizing, Managing and Archiving

Digitization is a process of converting patient's health records into electronic forms. The health records are converted into digital format and stored securely in a server at a central location for future references by healthcare professionals. This can also be hosted on an Internet/Intranet environment. Digitizing health records involves medical document imaging, medical record management, medical record scanning, and medical record storage.

Solution

Creating an effective and efficient medical record scanning and indexing program is a critical driver for success for healthcare institutions. As healthcare professionals decide to move from paper records to electronic medical document imaging, they need expertise with the highest quality of scanning and ability to retrieve these images easily and effectively.

Medtech can guide healthcare institutions through a complete medical record processing and indexing program.

Advantage

- Provides fast and easy data access
- Minimizes record storage space
- Provides confidentiality compliance
- High level of efficiency
- Prevents loss of records
- Enhances data portability
- Integration with Smart Card

Quality

Medical Records Digitization offers far more benefits than simple data access and convenience.

Medtech provides best document Imaging and superior scanning of documents through a standard quality assurance program.

Medtech offers uncompromising document digitizing services to regional businesses and businesses across the globe.

Why Medtech?

Medtech have enough expertise in digitally converting traditional paper records and images, and implement a software solution to manage these documents and images for online and offline distribution. Medtech enhances the quality of patient care by working with healthcare professionals in servicing and delivering advanced healthcare products. We focus on providing the customers to reduce costs, streamline processes, and most importantly, improve patient care. Our products will bring you some of the biggest and fastest returns on investment.

